Military details	Son of Arthur and Annie Fillmore, of 16, Sheepcote Rd., Harrow, Middx. According to RBL and Royal and Sun Alliance Insurance records, Private Frederick Arthur Fillmore (Service Number 3932) was killed in action on November 13, 1916, at the age of 22. He served in the 1st Battalion of the Honourable Artillery Company (HAC). He fell near the village of Ancre (Pas-de-Calais), France, on the Western Front. Private Fillmore was killed on the opening day of the Battle of the Ancre (the final, closing phase of the brutal Battle of the Somme). On that morning, the 1st Battalion HAC went "over the top" in heavy fog and thick mud to attack the formidable, fortified German positions known as the Station Redoubt. The battalion encountered ferocious machine-gun fire and devastating artillery shelling, suffering catastrophic losses. Due to the severe conditions of the muddy battlefield and subsequent artillery bombardments, his body was never recovered or could not be identified after the fight. He is officially commemorated by the Commonwealth War Graves Commission (CWGC) on the massive Thiepval Memorial to the Missing in the Somme region of France (Pier and Face 8 A). Before enlisting, he worked for the Royal Exchange Assurance company (now part of RSA Insurance). His name is permanently recorded on their corporate World War I Roll of Honour.

Story of Sacrifice

Frederick Arthur Fillmore (1894 – 1916)

Frederick Arthur Fillmore gained a bookkeeping qualification and worked for the Royal Exchange Assurance before enlisting in the Honourable Artillery Company in 1915. He was killed in action aged 22 on 13 November 1916.

Civilian Life

Frederick Arthur Fillmore was born in Harrow in 1894, the son of Arthur and Annie Fillmore of Sheepcote Road, Harrow-on-the-Hill. He had an older brother, Herbert George, and a younger sister, Isabella. His father worked in the education service as an official with the Harrow School Board and Middlesex Education Committee. In addition to attending John Lyon School, where he was noted for his essay writing during his final year, Frederick attended the Harrow Technical School, where he obtained a Stage 1 Bookkeeping certificate in November 1912, when he was about 18. Before enlisting, Fillmore worked for the Royal Exchange Assurance company, according to the research based on Royal and Sun Alliance records.

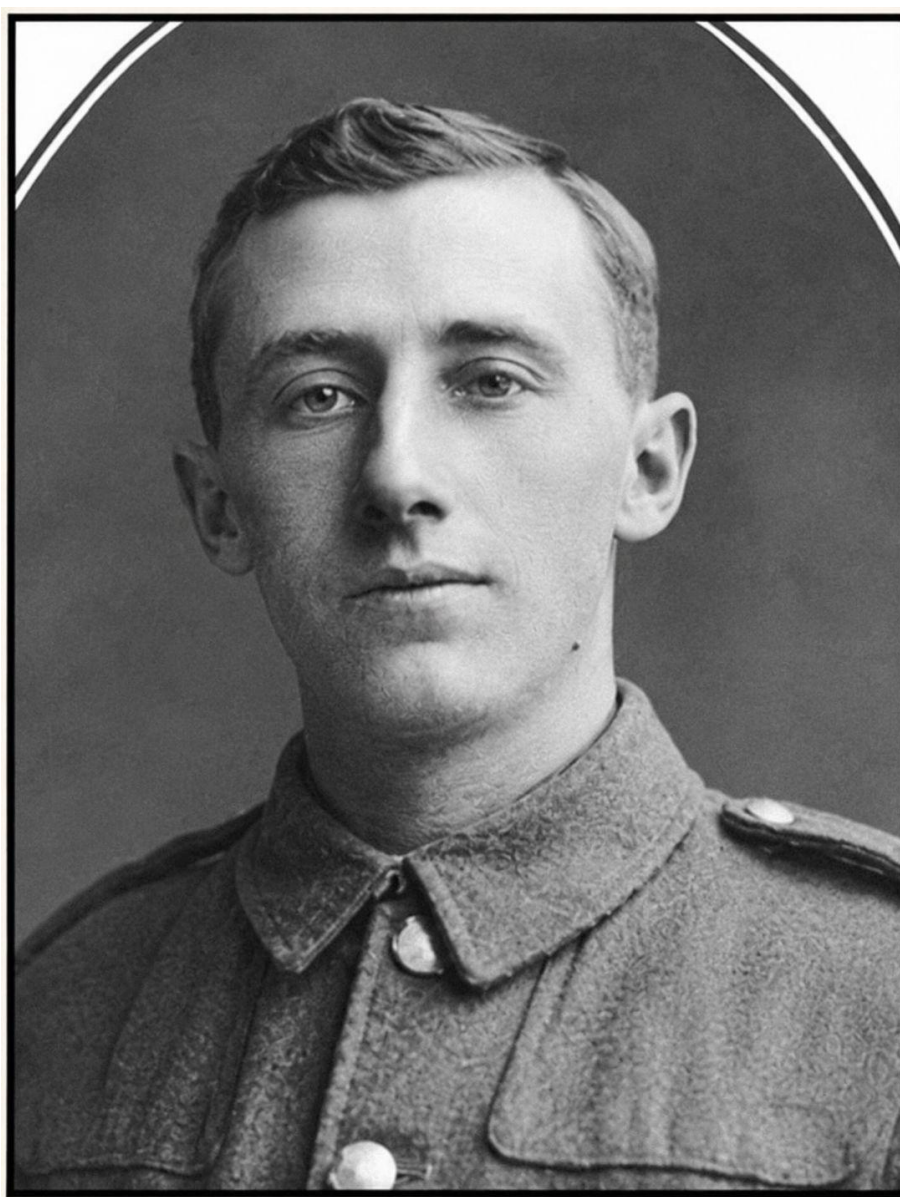

Military Life

Fillmore enlisted as a Private in the Honourable Artillery Company on 28 June 1915 (Service Number 3932.) He was sent to the Western Front and fought in the Battle of the Ancre, the final phase of the Battle of the Somme. On the opening day of the battle, the 1st Battalion HAC went "over the top" in heavy fog and thick mud to attack the formidable, fortified German positions known as the Station Redoubt. The battalion encountered ferocious machine-gun fire and devastating artillery shelling, suffering catastrophic losses. Due to the severe conditions of the muddy battlefield and subsequent artillery bombardments, his body was never recovered or could not be identified after the fight. He fell near the village of Ancre (Pas-de-Calais), France. Because his body was not subsequently recovered or identified, he is commemorated on the massive Thiepval Memorial to the Missing in the Somme region of France (Pier and Face 8 A.) His death was reported in the Harrow Observer as that of the younger son of Mr and Mrs Arthur Fillmore of Sheepcote Road, Harrow-on-the-Hill. His name is also recorded on several local memorials, including those associated with Harrow and John Lyon School. A stained-glass window was later placed in the College Road Baptist Church in his memory.

Long Education Service
Like his father, too, he became an official in the education service and when he retired on December 31 last year, Mr. Fillmore was senior clerical officer to the Middlesex Education Committee. He had been on the executive staff of the committee for 40 years, and for many years he also taught shorthand at the evening classes of the Harrow Technical School. His grandfather worked in the education service in another part of the country and the total period of the family service through the three generations was no less than 112 years.
During the first world war Mr. H. G. Fillmore served as a lieutenant in the Royal Garrison Artillery. His brother, Mr. Frederick Arthur Fillmore, was killed in that war in 1917 and a stained glass window to his memory was placed in the College-road church by his parents. In December, 1946, Mr. Fillmore unveiled a stained glass window in the Baptist Church, facing that to his brother, in memory of his parents, who are affectionately remembered by a large circle of friends.
Mr. Fillmore's son, aged 28, is also an Old Lyonian and he served as a L./Cpl. in the R.A.S.C. with the Eighth Army throughout the Africa and Italy campaigns during the late war.
The funeral takes place at the Pinner-road new cemetery to-day (Thursday), preceded by a service at the College-road church.
